Sacramento River Water Hearing Adjourned

SECRETARY FALL'S CASE DISMISSED

WATER QUERY IS ADJOURNED UNTIL MAY 5

East Bay Water Company Submits Full Case on Sacramento River Water Question

OPPOSITION'S MOVE NEXT

East Bay Utility District Opposes Plan of Water Company As Unnecessary

With its full case submitted, the plea upon which the East Bay Water Company seeks permission to develop a water source on the lower Sacramento river rests upon a supposition of a possible water shortage resulting from subnormal rainfall during the next two years. This was adduced from the testimony of George H. Wilhelm, vice-president and general manager of the company, before the California Railroad Commission last night.

After the company had presented all of its testimony supporting its application for a permit to develop the Sacramento river project, an adjournment was taken until May 5 to permit attorneys for the East Bay Municipal Utility District, opposing the application, to prepare the arguments for the people. In the meantime, it was stipulated, the company and the district will exchange all available data on their respective water projects and plans of both projects will be submitted to the commission.

The hearing was completed last night in Oakland before the State railroad commission, on the proposition of the East Bay Water Company to expend $9,500,000 to develop the flood waters of the Sacramento river. This proposition is opposed by the nine cities of the East Bay Utility District, which voted a $39,000,000 bond issued last fall for the development of the Mokelumne river water project. Richmond was represented at the hearing by Mayor J. H. Plate and Attorney D. J. Hall.

REVIEWS SITUATION.

Wilhelm gave a complete review of the water situation. He declared that growth of the East Bay cities has caused him to revise his estimates four times since 1912. At first the estimate of growth was 3 per cent. Later it was changed to 4 per cent, then to 6 per cent and finally to 8 per cent per year. "I now predict the growth at 8 per cent a year and beyond this I refuse to predict," said Wilhelm. "The East Bay communities are growing so rapidly that accurate predictions are almost impossible."

Wilhelm declared that if no rainfall is obtained during the winter of 1925-26, the communities will be practically out of water on March 1, 1926. If a normal amount of rainfall is obtained, the condition will be about the same as at the present time.

"The communities are gambling on weather conditions," he said. They are running a risk of water shortage not only in 1927 but next year as well." Wilhelm fixed the amount of water in storage at 8,100,000,000 gallons.

ADVOCATES RIVER WATER.

Wilhelm advocated the Sacramento supply as the best supply available. The first step in the project includes the construction of six miles of tunnel and fifteen miles of steel

Collins Is Sixth Candidate To Run For City Council

The latest candidate to throw his hat in the ring for city councilman is John I. Collins, the plumber of 252 Seventeenth street.

Petitions were placed in the hands of circulators yesterday, by Collins, and it is expected the nomination papers will be filed in a few days.

This makes the fifth candidate in the field, and there are rumors on the streets that several other petitions will be filed before April 15, the final day for the presentation of petitions.

It is stated that Attorney T. N. Calfee has secured two sets of nomination petitions, but who they are for, cannot be learned from Calfee. He refuses to make a statement concerning them, except that two of his friends asked him to secure petitions for them, and he does not know whether they intend to use them or not.

Those now in the race are Mattie Chandler (incumbent), W. L. Laffie (incumbent), W. W. Scott, (incumbent), John I. Collins and Charles F. Bevin and F. Knight.

Under the terms of the city charter, if more than six file petitions, it will be necessary to hold a primary election, April 26. The general election will take place May 11.

HANFORD-KLATT ARE VICTORS IN BRIDGE CONTEST

Aspirants for Second Franchise Are Turned Down by State Supreme Court

PROVISIONS OF LAW IGNORED

County Will Not Be Put to Expense of Holding Expensive Bridge Election

There will be no election held in this county to determine whether a second franchise for a bridge across Carquinez straits shall be granted.

The action of the board of supervisors in denying a petition for a second franchise, filed by the Northern California Development company, has been upheld by the state supreme court, and the long bitter fight that has been made against Avon Hanford and T. S. Klatt and their associates, who are now building a suspension bridge across the Carquinez Straits, is at an end.

It is the general opinion that one bridge will take care of all the traffic, and that a second one, would serve no particular purpose.

In a decision, written by Associate Justice John E. Richards and concurred in unanimously by the court, the writ of mandate against the supervisors asked by John F. Galvin and other officers of the company was denied.

The refusal of the supervisors was based on the fact that it would injure the stockholders of the American Toll Bridge Company, which is erecting a $4,000,000 bridge across Carquinez Straits between Crockett and Morrow cove. The development company at that time submitted petitions signed by 5500 citizens of Contra Costa county to put their application for a franchise to a vote of the people.

LAW NOT RESPECTED

Until notice of the proposed application had been given as required by law and a hearing held as well as a notification of the purpose of the franchise had been sent to the State Engineer, the Board of Supervisors would have neither jurisdiction nor power to enact any ordinance "purporting to grant a franchise for a toll bridge across navigable waters," the decision stated. In this case it did not appear that public notice was given or that the State Engineer was notified it was said.

FOUR MILES OFF ROAD

The proposed bridge of the development company would be approximately four miles distant from the one of the toll bridge company and would utilize the Martinez highway into Northern California rather than the bay shore highway, which runs into the site of the American Toll Bridge company.

The Northern California Development company was incorporated in August of last year and is the successor of the San Francisco Bridge company, which more than two years ago was refused a franchise for a bridge across Carquinez Straits. Its president is Dr. Otto G. Frevermuth, physician and surgeon while its list of incorporators includes W. H. Worden, H. F. Martens, Jesse Newbauer, Andrew Kaiser, Sylvan Davis, George Gillman, Arnold Liebes, James Reader, Judge Frank S. Brittan, Joseph Eastwood, R. A. Peabody and Joseph Cumming.

Firemen-"Cops" Game April 18; Winner-Carmen Game April 24

At last the police and firemen have something worthwhile to make them more interested in their coming conflict, the date of which has been definitely set for April 18, Saturday afternoon, at the First street and Macdonald avenue garden.

This last attraction is a beautiful trophy, standing 16 inches in height, lavishly decorated with balls, bats, and other "doo-dads" connected with the great American game. The cup was donated by the Thomas E. Wilson Sporting and Athletic Goods Co. of San Francisco. It will be displayed in a store window on Macdonald avenue in the near future until after the game, when it will be awarded the winner.

The affable chesty firefighters have become much more cheery after their two victories over the high school and now that they have the smell of battle in their nostrils they have signed up to take on the powerful Santa Fe nine at the Twenty-third street diamond next Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

It is expected that the services of Jim Towers will be solicited to officiate at the game, as his fellow department men are greatly pleased with his almost uncanny ability to call a ball a strike, and a safe man out, as it is alleged was shown when he umpired the first high school game. The funny part of it was that he invariably called the close decisions against his own team, so it is hoped that he can be avoided upon to take charge Sunday so the roadworkers will have some chance at least.

LIVE-UP FOR SUNDAY

The men who will don the togs for the department Sunday will be: Evans, Morissette, and Addison, ex-Hathaway, 2-5; Moore, 1b; Field Captain Bill Grady and Merriman, c; Davidson, 2b; Kitley, cf; Lathrop, and Clark, cf; Days and Condry, lf; Marvin and Huzefka, p.

Huzefka who will start the game on the mound, comes into the line-up for the first time this season on Sunday, April 5, and it is rumored that he will pitch the entire game. He is an ex-pitcher from up the coast and it is believed that he will be able to go the entire time. In case he does not, however, Marvin will be always ready to step into his place.

On April 18, the firemen will play the police, and the next game after that will be with the Traction company team. Further than that it is not known who they will play, but it is stated that a game may be scheduled at any time, merely by writing W. P. Cooper, chief engineer, Richmond Fire Department, 235 Fifth street, Richmond.

Moore, the star initial sacker of the department, Morissette and Geo. Embach, ex-junior captain of the fire department have been turned over to the police for their team. Other luminaries for the "Cops" will be Sharkey Frey Bynum, pitcher de luxe, Ernest Henry, Eddie Baker, Paul Jones, "Ping" Donnelly, Bill Moore, Charley Morissette, George Embach, and Jimmie Eades. Four policemen will act as subs.

Of the police aggregation listed above, Bynum, Donnelly, Henry, Frey, and Baker are all ex-professional ball players, while the others are amateurs of the highest class.

CASE AGAINST EX-SECRETARY TO BE RENEWED

Judge Quashes Indictment Against Fall, Doheny and Sinclair in Teapot Dome Scandal

U. S. WILL NOT DROP SUIT

Prompt Appeal Planned From Decision of Court Which Was Based on Technicalities

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The government will at once appeal the ruling of Justice McCoy of the District Supreme Court, today, quashing the indictment against former Secretary of the Interior Fall, Harry F. Sinclair, Edward L. Doheny and Edward L. Doheny, Jr., the principals in the oil scandal.

This was announced by United States Attorney Peyton Gordon today, after a telephone conversation with Owen J. Roberts, special counsel for the government, who is in Philadelphia.

Justice McCoy, in his decision throwing out the indictments, ruled that the presence of Oliver E. Pagan, a special assistant to the Attorney General in the grand jury room while the testimony was being taken, was unlawful and visited the indictments.

The ruling of the judge did not discuss the question of the guilt or innocence of the defendants, but dismissed the indictments solely on technical legal grounds.

ON TECHNICAL GROUNDS

According to the opinion, the Senate resolution which took the prosecution out of the hands of the department of justice and required the appointment of special counsel by the President nullified the right of the attorney-general or any of his assistants to appear before the grand jury or be present in the grand jury room. This interpretation made legal the presence in the grand jury room of only District Attorney Gordon and Roberts and Atlee Dornenece, both special counsel for the government, and not connected with the department of justice.

Under the indictments the defendants were charged with criminal conspiracy in connection with the leasing by the government of the Teapot Dome oil field to Sinclair, and the Elk Hills Reserve to Doheny.

District Attorney Gordon said that the statute of limitations would not prevent the government from securing new indictments in place of those which were dismissed.

Milk Consumers Protected Here

The Richmond city health department yesterday denied the application of A. E. Donnelly for a permit to sell milk in Richmond from the Pinole Raw Milk dairy. It was said the permit was refused because the sanitary conditions of the dairy were not up to the Richmond standard. High standing in sanitary conditions is said to be maintained by the Purdy Creamery and other dairies in Richmond and the milk consumers of Richmond are being carefully guarded by the health department and Milk Inspector R. R. Root.

Expansion Era In Commercial Flying Seen By Deposed Chief

In view of the development of the Richmond airfield and the prospect of dedicating part of it to the use of transcontinental commercial fliers, the views of Brigadier General William Mitchell, deposed assistant chief of the Army Air Service, on the commercial airways question, are of particular interest here.

Following is the report of an interview with General Mitchell:

BY FRANCIS J. TEITSORT
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Brigadier General William Mitchell, Assistant Chief of the army air service, who relinquishes the post by transfer April 27 to be air officer of the corps area of which San Antonio is headquarters, returned to Washington tonight expressing his convictions on the future of air power.

He said that Commercial Aeronautics must be vastly stimulated by the Government as a backbone of reserve for national defense, and added:

"Realization of the precise truth of the meaning of air power for national safety must continuously be borne home to the people. If that is done I think we may safely rely upon congress to provide for the future."

On the question of Government encouragement of commercial air transport should like to say that there are now very hopeful signs on the horizon. The encouraging and backing of routes by the Fords and their groups, and by W. Averell Harriman and others indicate that we are on the eve of an era of expansion.

"The government must help. I believe that provision should be made by the Government to establish commercial airways over the best routes from coast to coast between our principal cities. This means the establishment of adequately equipped flying fields everywhere by cooperation with municipalities. It means that there must be hangars, oil and gas stations, weather reports by radio and full mechanical equipment at the airfields."

"But beyond that I believe that for several years to come the Government should supply commercial lines using these routes with oil and gasoline at cost price. This will not cost the Government anything extra and it will be a great aid to the commercial companies in the getting the best fuel and lubricants at a minimum rate."

"The air lanes must be lighted by beacons at night and by route signal lamps for the aerial transport lines just as our coasts are marked by light houses maintained by the government to insure the safety of waterborne transport."

Quadra Crew Found Guilty on Dry Law

(By Universal Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—Shortly after 10 o'clock tonight the jury in the Quadra case brought in a verdict against 10 members of the crew, charged with conspiracy to violate the United States prohibition laws. Minor members of the crew were given their liberty, but the captain, two mates and the chief engineer were among those found guilty.

PARALYSIS HITS WAR SECRETARY; MAY QUIT POST

Weeks' Illness Is Described as Clot of Small Artery in His Brain on Right Side

CAUSED DEATH OF WILSON

War President was Stricken With Similar Ailment Which Eventually Brought Death

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Secretary of War Weeks has suffered a stroke of partial paralysis, it was learned today. It may force his retirement from the cabinet.

It was strongly intimated today, following reports of Weeks condition that if he retires from the cabinet, Postmaster-General Harry S. New will be shifted to the War Department and will be succeeded in the Postoffice Department by Charles H. Hilles of New York.

Hilles has been mentioned for a Cabinet office for several months. He was private Secretary to President Taft, later chairman of the National Committee and is now National Committeeman from New York.

The transfer of New to the War Department was considered by the late resident Harding several months before his death, when there were hints that Weeks might leave the Cabinet, and it is understood President Coolidge has had the subject under consideration in connection with Weeks' possible retirement.

MAY PROVE FATAL.

Weeks' illness is described as thrombosis, or clot, of a small artery in the brain, on the right side. It has caused an obstruction of the blood circulation, leading to partial paralysis of the left arm and side. If the stoppage should assume any considerable proportions the result would be fatal.

The ailment is similar to that which caused first paralysis and eventually death of the late President Wilson.

Weeks has been absent from his desk at the War Department for several days but until today it had been announced that he was merely "indisposed." A bulletin issued by his physician today was the first public notice of the seriousness of his condition.

CONDITION GRAVE.

In spite of the ostensible optimism of the physician's statement, it is believed that the symptoms revealed are sufficient gravity to induce him to retire from active duty as soon as President Coolidge will accept his resignation.

The Secretary will pass his sixtieth birthday next week.

Mr. Weeks' health has not been of the best for many months and he recently took a ten days' vacation to recuperate from the inroads made upon his constitution by the grind of official routine. He returned from this trip during which he took a complete rest, in the South, on Saturday.

THE DIFFERENCE OF ONE YEAR

People are saying a great deal, these days, about the "failure of prohibition" and the "good times that did not arrive." But let us tell you about the difference of one year, as gleaned from our own personal observation.

One year ago, in mid-winter, the hardest season of the year, we strolled through the down-town section of Stockton,—the section where the working man congregated, where they patronize rooming houses and restaurants.

We had no more than turned the corner when we were halted and "mooched," or asked for a "handout." "Mister," was the plea, "I have just two bits and I need two bits more to get a room."

This is a form of alms-asking that has now grown old with usage. Before we could move on another man, staggering under a load of some sort of intoxication, bumped into us, edged his way around and went reeling and muttering on his way.

We strolled around the block and it seemed to us that every fifth man was soliciting for the remainder of the price of a meal or the rental of a bed. It also appeared as if about one in every fifteen or so, was "drunk." We circled the block and we believe we were "mooched" two hundred times and there were muttering, reeling, half-crazed drunken men everywhere.

The city was filled with laboring men, as it always is, as all California cities are, in winter time. They looked discouraged, unkempt, disheveled. Many of them were unshaven.

ONE YEAR LATER. Once again we were in Stockton, at the same period of the year.

We turned the same corner. A man bumped into us, but he quickly stepped aside, apologized, smiled, even grinned, and went briskly on. No one "mooched" us.

We strolled on. A man approached us from the center of the street. At last, thought we, must match a coin. But the man only politely inquired his way.

Twice, as before, we strolled around the block and only once were we "mooched." We saw only two "drunks." One of them was feeling his way along the pavement and the other was entertaining the crowd at a Salvation Army gathering.

The same crowds were there, as before. But they were different. There was a light of contentment, even enjoyment, on their faces, as of men on vacation. Clothes were neatly brushed and pressed, shoes shined and faces shaven. The clothes were of better grade than they were the year before, and no one seemed worried for the price of a "feed."

One year ago, a few weeks later in the season, we strolled down Third street in San Francisco. This is also the workingman's "hang out." We saw the same condition there. Every few steps we were asked for money, and oftener than that we encountered drunk and poisoned men, sick from poison liquor or crazing drugs.

A year later, in fact the past three Sundays, we have strolled through the same district. The same crowds are there, that is, they looked the same in numbers but not in appearance.

No one "mooched" us, NOT ONCE; and we did not see ONE INTOXICATED MAN. They all had the same appearance noted at Stockton, WITHOUT EXCEPTION.

The explanation? We think there are two reasons. One is, the BETTER TIMES PERIOD HAS ARRIVED. The other is, PROHIBITION HAS SUCCEEDED.

During the summer, the men, all of them, found remunerative jobs. They worked. When winter came they had enough surplus to carry them through. There is an excellent promise of another good summer ahead, and so they are not worrying.

As for prohibition, it has succeeded by its own enforcement. The men have learned, after a long period of painful experiment, that the stuff now called "booze" is poison; sheer, blasting, killing poison. They will no longer drink it. Its "after effects" are too dreadful.

They have not sufficient means to buy the high priced stimulants, so-called "good." So, they have learned,—the best lesson of all—that they can do without liquor. They are forgetting it. LEAVE PROHIBITION IN FORCE A FEW MORE YEARS AND THERE WILL BE NO MORE DRUNKS.

Taste of liquor will be but a memory, a faint one, in the minds of the "oldest inhabitant." Younger generations now growing up will not know the meaning of words so familiar to us all before prohibition. They will have to refer to the dictionary to define them.

INCREASING SOBRIETY

The head of a steel manufacturing concern in Bristol and Newport, Eng., reports that sobriety is increasing there, not through the activities of any reform association nor political parties, "but because of a growing public understanding."

During the war, liquor sales were restricted in England and everyone engaged in work of national importance was urged to supreme patriotic effort. Employees and employers alike found that the best work did not follow the free use of alcoholic beverages.

Decreased drunkenness, even though slight, is a particularly interesting development in a land that does not prohibit the use of

Lovely Lace Frocks Tempt Women
to Depart From Masculine Styles.

THERE is comfort in the thought that lace frocks are much in demand among fashionable women. Lace is so essentially feminine that when fashion prescribes lace frocks and lace-trimmed frocks we need not fear that women are becoming entirely masculinized in their dress. To be sure, men have worn lace. They had lace frills at their sleeves and necks not more than a century and a quarter ago, and there are artists now who would like to see a revival of lace-trimmed shirts for men, at the present time. But there is little chance of such an innovation.

So while a smartly dressed woman you know may appear in the morning in a tailored coat that is nearly a duplicate of her brother's with straight-heeled shoes, closely cut hair and a simple felt hat—that same woman may appear in the frilliest of lace frocks at five that afternoon. After all the masculine attire with most women is only a pose.

You may choose between black lace and the so-called natural shades, which are used by clever dressmakers. Black is often posed over or child, pink or apricot. The natural shades are achieved by using the linen threads in their natural, undyed, unbleached condition. Beige, ecru and other tones are thus achieved. Often the lace is dyed to match the shade of chiffon with which it is used—various violet tones especially liked. The sketch shows lace dyed pink, which forms yoke and flounces, while the frock between is of pleated pink tulle. The forecast is made that we are to have a revival of the old-time lingerie frock, combining fine embroidery, hand tucking and various lace edges, insertions and medallions. This, of course, involves much hand work but fine hand work is one of the striking characteristics of the new clothes.

IF YOU ARE NERVOUS

RECENTLY a renowned nerve specialist said that nervous patients seldom have hobbies. That is he has found that it is only very rarely that one of the men or women who come to him for help in nervous disorders proves to have any sort of hobby. Inversely we might conclude that people who have hobbies run less risk of becoming sufferers than those who have no such diversion.

This self-same nerve specialist was unfortunate enough a few years ago to become a nervous patient himself. His trouble was due to hard work and anxiety without the relief of a hobby. By way of treating his own case he took up knitting. Large, thoroughly masculine man that he is, this proved an excellent recreation. He could turn to it at any time and he felt nervous and he chose intricate enough knitting to make sure that it would hold his attention. Crossword puzzles have proved beneficial to overworked people because they are difficult enough to force concentration. Others who have sought and found relief from nervousness by way of hobbies have taken up clay modeling, sketching and furniture modeling.

taken from the middle of the ear." This would make an ounce equal the weight of 480 grains. In avoirdupois weight the standard is different; but in Troy weight there are still 480 grains to the ounce, which makes the origin of the name obvious.

CHAPTER XXX—Continued

Something greater than mere curiosity began to take possession of Carvel. A whimsical humor became a fixed and deeper thought, an unreasoning anticipation that was accompanied by a certain thrill of subdued excitement. By the time they reached the old beaver-pond the mystery of the strange adventure had a firm hold on him. From Heavertooth's colony Barre led him to the creek along which Wakayoo, the black bear, had fished, and thence straight to the Gray Loon.

It was early afternoon of a wonderful day. It was so still that the rippling waters of spring, singing in a thousand rills and streamlets, filled the forests with a droning music. In the warm sun the crimson bakneesh glowed like blood. In the open spaces the air was scented with the perfume of Blue Flowers. In the trees and bushes mated birds were building their nests. After the long sleep of winter Nature was at work in all her glory. It was Unekepesim, the Mating Moon, the Home Building Moon—and Barre was going home. Not to matehood—but to Nepeese.

He knew that she was there now, perhaps at the very edge of the chasm where he had seen her last. They would be playing together again soon, as they had played yesterday, and the day before, and the day before that, and in his joy he barked up into Carvel's face, and urged him to greater speed. Then they came to the clearing, and once more Barre stood like a rock. Carvel saw the charred ruins of the burned cabin, and a moment later the two graves under the tall spruce. He began to understand as his eyes returned slowly to the waiting, listening dog. A great swelling rose in his throat, and ing places; the great split rock on the other side, the shelving banks under which they used to dive like otter, the spruce boughs that dipped down to the surface, and in the midst of which the Willow loved to screen her naked body while he searched the pool for her. And at last the realization was borne upon him that she was not there, that he had still farther to go.

He went on to the tepee. The little open space in which they had built their hidden wigwam was flooded with sunshine that came through a break in the forest to the west. The tepee was still there. It did not seem very much changed to Barre. And rising from the ground in front of the tepee was what had come to him faintly on the still air—the smoke of a small fire. Over that fire was bending a person, and it did not strike Barre as amazing, or at all unexpected, that this person should have two great shining braids down her back. He whined, and at his whine the person grew a little rigid, and turned slowly.

Even then it seemed quite the most natural thing in the world that it should be Nepeese, and none other. He had lost her yesterday. Today he had found her. And in answer to his whine there came a sobbing cry straight out of the soul of the Willow.

Carvel found them there a few minutes later, the dog's head hugged close up against the Willow's breast, and the Willow was crying—crying like a little child, her face hidden from him on Barre's neck. He did not interrupt them, but waited; and as he waited something in the sobbing voice and the stillness of the forest seemed to whisper to him a bit of the story of the burned cabin and the two graves, and the meaning of the Call that had come to Barre from out of the south.

CHAPTER XXXI

That night there was a new campfire in the open. It was not a small fire, built with the fear that other eyes might see it, but a fire that sent its flames high. In the glow of it stood Carvel. And as the fire had changed from that small smouldering heap over which the Willow had cooked her dinner, so Carvel, the officially dead outlaw, had changed. The beard was gone from his face; he had thrown off his caribou-skin coat; his sleeves were rolled up to the elbows, and there was a wild flush in his face that was not altogether the tanning of wind and sun and storm, and a glow in his eyes that had not been there for five years, perhaps never before. His eyes were on Nepeese.

"Tomorrow or the next day I am going to Lac Bain," he said, a hard and bitter note back of the gentle worship in his voice, "I will not come back until I have—killed him."

The Willow looked straight into the fire. For a time there was a silence broken only by the crackling of the flames, and in that silence Carvel's fingers strayed in and out of the silken strands of the Willow's hair. His thoughts flashed back. What a chance he had missed that day on Bush Metagart's trapline—if he had only known! His jaws set hard as he saw in the red-hot heart of the fire the mental pictures of the day when the Factor from Lac Bain had killed Pierrot. She had told him the whole story. Her flight. Her plunge to what she had thought was certain death in the icy torrent of the chasm. Her miraculous escape from the waters—and how she was discovered, nearly dead, by Tuboa, the toothless old Cree whom Pierrot out of pity had allowed to hunt in part of his domain.

He felt within himself the tragedy and the horror of the one terrible hour in which the sun had gone out of the world for the Willow, and in the flames he could see faithful old Tuboa as he called on his last strength to bear Nepeese over the long miles that lay between the chasm and his cabin; he caught shifting visions of the weeks that followed in that cabin, weeks of hunger and of intense cold in which the Willow's life hung by a single thread. And at last, when the snows were deepest, Tuboa had died. Carvel's fingers clenched in the strands of the Willow's braid. A deep breath rose out of his chest, and he said, staring deep into the fire, "Tomorrow I will go to Lac Bain."

"Even then it seemed quite the most natural thing in the world that it should be Nepeese, and none other."

after a moment or two he said softly, and with an effort.

"Boy, I guess you're home."

Barre did not hear. With his head up and his nose tilted to the blue sky he was sniffing the air. What was it that came to him with the perfumes of the forests and the green meadow? Why was it that he trembled now as he stood there? What was there in the air? Carvel asked himself, and his questioning eyes tried to answer the questions. Nothing. There was death here—death and desertion, that was all. And then, all at once, there came from Barre a strange cry—almost a human cry—and he was gone like the wind.

Carvel had thrown off his pack. He dropped his rifle beside it now, and followed Barre. He ran swiftly, straight across the open, into the dwarf balsams and into a grass-grown path that had once been worn by the travel of feet. He ran until he was panting for breath, and then stopped and listened. He could hear nothing of Barre. But that old worn trail led on under the forest trees, and he followed it.

Close to the deep, dark pool in which he and the Willow had disappeared so often Barre, too, had stopped. He could hear the rippling of water, and his eyes shone with a gleaming fire as he quested for Nepeese. He expected to see her there, her slim white body shimmering in some dark shadow of overhanging spruce, or gleaming suddenly white as snow in one of the warm splashes of sunlight. His eyes sought out their old hid-

Daily Cross Word Puzzle

The way to solve the Cross Word Puzzle is to fill in the white squares of the diagram with the words which agree with the accompanying definitions. The definitions are numbered to correspond with the numbers on the diagram.

Any word defined in the text under "HORIZONTAL" will begin at its number, shown on the diagram, and will extend all the way across to the first black space to the right of that number. That is, the word must begin in the square that contains its identifying number, and extend as far as the white squares continue uninterruptedly.

Any word defined under "VERTICAL" will also begin in the white space that contains its number, but will extend downward as far as the white space remains uninterruptedly.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

NANCY LARRABEE is living with her mother.

VIRGINIA LELAND, in New York. Nancy's husband, an army officer, is stationed in the Philippines, and has left his wife behind. She believes that he cares more for another woman than he does for her. When visiting in the Bahama Islands, Nancy falls in love with

BILL EWING, and returns to New York, planning to get a divorce and marry him. Her mother is much interested in

FRANK HARRISON, an elderly bachelor.

XXXVIII—HOME AGAIN

WHEN I had seen Virginia off for the little Carolina town where my father lay ill, I went home and began to wonder what explanations I was going to make to Frank Harrison.

Virginia hadn't given him more than half a thought. Before she heard that Dad was ill all her thoughts had been of Frank.

He telephoned to ask if she'd have lunch with him.

"She can't," I told him. "She's been called out of town."

"Well, then, why don't you play substitute for her?" he asked. "It's such a peach of a day that I thought it would be pleasant to drive up the Hudson to a little restaurant that overlooks the river and lunch there."

"I'd love it," I told him. "I'll be ready in half an hour," I told him.

As soon as we had worn our way through the city's traffic and got out to a clear stretch of road he asked about Virginia.

"She's gone back to Dad," I told him. "He's ill, and she has suddenly realized that she does care for him, more than she does for anyone else. I know that she's awfully fond of you, but when she heard that he was sick, somehow she had to go to him."

His face looked so grim that I could see that he felt awfully bad over the news, but he didn't say anything about it. After a little while he began to talk about the scenery, and he didn't mention Virginia to me again for hours.

We had luncheon at the little inn high above the river, and then drove on down a country road. The spring flowers were just beginning to bloom, and everywhere bits of color showed where the early tulips were out.

"I want to get out and run along the road," I told Frank when I couldn't stand being rushed through the beautiful country side any longer. "You drive along, and I'll catch up with you."

"All right—though why you should want to walk when you might as well drive is more than I can see," he answered.

His car soon disappeared around a bend of the road, and I walked along through the grass, wishing that I could live in the country all the time. I felt as if I had left all my worries far behind me; as if nothing very complicated could take place in my life. And then, remembering the tangles in which I seemed to involve myself without half trying.

ing, I wondered if even in the country I could live simply.

There were some children playing around a deserted house, and I stopped and talked to them. They had gathered some wild flowers that lay in a limp heap on the number-down porch, and were trying to make a wreath of them. I sat down and helped them. It was so beautifully quiet that I wished more than ever that I could come out into the country and live.

I stayed there until Frank Harrison came back after me. The children hated to see me go. I turned and waved to them as we drove away. Frank said that he had stopped the car about half a mile further down the road and waited till he was sure that something had happened to me.

"Something has," I answered. "While I was down in Nassau I fell in love—really in love. That changes everyone."

He looked at me curiously. "I thought that you fell in love with your husband when you first met," he said. "Is this the same kind of love?"

"Certainly not," I told him. "Real love lasts, and this is real."

He didn't say anything more, and all the way home I sat quietly dreaming about Bill Ewing, and the happiness that would, some day be mine.

"I don't believe you know your own heart," Frank told me, almost savagely. "It changes almost overnight. If your husband wanted to hold you he never should have gone off to the Philippines and left you here."

"He didn't want to hold me," I answered pettily. "It made me angry for him to criticize me. There was someone else in his life, so I let him go, feeling quite sure that soon there'd be someone else in mine."

He didn't say anything to that, but drove home so fast and so recklessly that I wondered whether we'd be alive when we got there. I knew that he was upset about Virginia's treatment of him, but really, there was no reason why he should take it out on me!

For the first time since Jim's departure I felt really lonely that evening. I'd always had so many engagements that I'd wished I could dispense with some of them. Now suddenly I hadn't any. Nobody but Nick and his wife and Frank would know that I was home at all, of course, still it seemed strange not to have anything to do.

Tomorrow—A Warning.

NEPTUNE BEACH OPENS OUTDOOR SEASON SUNDAY

The 1925 outdoor season will be ushered in tomorrow at Neptune Beach, Alameda, with fitting ceremonies. The addition of more than twenty acres of new beach land to the big resort will be celebrated by a visit from King Neptune and his following of bathing beauties. They will make a tour of the new beach, visiting "The Playhouse Playhouse," a new swimming pool 150 by 600 feet in size and "Neptune-by-the-Sea," a small city of vacation cottages.

The outdoor swimming season will be ushered in by the Pacific Association fifty yard junior women's swimming championship. All records for entry lists will be broken in this race, according to Coach Frank Riss of the Trident Aquatic squad who states that more than a score of maids will line up for the title swim.

Among the stars who are entered are: Brownie Marsh, of Sacramento, winner of the novice fifty at Neptune late last season. Bunny Ferguson of Neptune, one of the speediest swimmers in the West, besides being the Northern California diving queen. Edna Williams of Lodi, Ethel Reh of San Rafael, Phyllis Linscott of Santa Cruz, Helen Zabriskie of the Fleischacker club, Evelyn McLeod, San Francisco, Dorelle Chisholm of Berkeley, Geneva Whited, of Girls H. S. San Francisco and Bernice Phelan of Fresno.

As a preliminary to the swimming championship, the Olympic club water polo team, contenders for the National title in April, will play a game of the hard fighting sport. Lester Smith, a member of the American Olympic swimming team to Paris last year will give an exhibition fifty yard swim.

Two performances of vaudeville on the outdoor stage and a band concert under the direction of Trancorel Valera will feature the afternoon program at the beach. At night the beach will blaze with fireworks, according to the program committee. Great set pieces of fiery material will be touched off on the new beach land fronting the bay. Bonns and rockets will be set off at frequent intervals during the evening if it is announced.

Union High Team Defeats Oakland Nine in Game Here

At last the frown of the jinx that has been relentlessly pursuing the baseball team of the Richmond Union high school, seems to have changed to a smile.

When the Roosevelt high school of Oakland journeyed to the local field yesterday, with the expectations of walking away from the Richmond boys, they found to their sorrow that Coach Hill's men have improved considerably since their last game. When darkness slipped the game at the end of the seventh inning, the score books showed that Richmond had won the game, 1 to 1.

This modest victory was the first exhibition of baseball the local nine has shown this season. The most surprising fact to all concerned was the lack of errors. The Richmond team was errorless, while their opponents first sack, Arthur got his feet tangled up in a hot one in the fifth and fumbled the ball.

The box score:
Richmond players: AB R H E
O'Brien, 3b, 4 0 0 0
Lehmkuhl, 1b, 4 1 1 0
Swenson, 2b, 4 1 0 0

Impressed With Growth of City

C. F. Pollard, of Woodland, accompanied by his wife, is in Richmond, over the week-end on one of his periodic visits. Pollard, who is a prominent rancher in the Woodland district, declared that although he was in Richmond only a comparatively short time ago, he was most surprised at its remarkable growth upon his arrival here yesterday. He expressed himself as very much impressed with the prospects for the city in the very near future.

Pollard, who specializes in the raising of prunes and almonds, states that with the recent rains the expectations of everyone in his county had risen to a great extent and a bumper crop in all lines of agriculture is expected. He said the farmers who raise grain have already counted their profits, and are practically assured of 40 sacks to the acre.

The Canadian Rockies form the picturesque background of "Unseen Eyes," the new Cosmopolitan picture which received its initial screening in Richmond at the Richmond theatre last night. The film, an adaptation of an Arthur Strider story, is chock full of action, which reaches its climax in an airplane pursuit. It differs from other photoplays of the great outdoors in its careful direction and beautiful and effective staging. The pictures of the mountains lend a grandeur and impressiveness that assist immeasurably in the unfolding of the story.

The cast is a splendid one in every respect. Lionel Barrymore, who always adds distinction to any picture in which he appears, is featured in the leading role. Playing opposite him is Seena Owens, who is charming in the role of Miriam, a most picturesque and efficient villain; Gustav von Seyffertitz, Walter Miller, Charles Beyer, Helen Lindroth, Jack Johnston, Louis Doer, Frances Red, Lele, Paul Panzer and Dan Red Eagle.

Other features on the same program include Ruth Roland in the second thrilling chapter of "Haunted Galaxy," "Felix Saves the Day" a Felix the cat cartoon.

SORE CHEST AND NERVOUSNESS

In an Oakland Court on January 29, 1925, hundreds of people heard the testimony of Mr. D. Ashlar of Mt. Eden and of Mr. J. Duarte of San Leandro, both of whom had been called as witnesses against the Fong Wan Herbs.

These men testified that the Fong Wan Herbs had permanently relieved both Sore Chest and Nervousness, and had made them strong and able to go back to work again.

They claim that no other treatment has repeatedly been vindicated in court and proved to be an effective as the Fong Wan Herbs.

This testimony was given in the first trial of Fong Wan Herbs in the latest campaign of the Medical Board against the Chinese Herbalists about the Bay.

THOROUGHBREDS, INCLUDING CHAMPION SARAZEN, TRAINING AT BELMONT PARK FOR SPRING RACING SEASON

Max Hirsch has about the largest stable at the Belmont Park race course, New York, that he has had since he began his career as trainer.

At the time this photograph was taken he had 32 horses owned by 11 different interests. He is shown above on a white horse with some of the thoroughbreds he is preparing for the races. In front are Eben M. Byers, Young Martin, King Solomon's Seal and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt II's Sarazen, which has been the pride of Hirsch's string for two years.

WATER QUERY

conduit and pumping units at Mallard of 60,000,000 gallons per day capacity. The first step in the project would give a safe yield of 25,000,000 gallons daily and under normal conditions would yield 45,000,000 gallons daily. He said that if desired the project could eventually be made to produce 200,000,000 gallons daily.

Wilhelm admitted that a San Joaquin project could be built in practically the same length of time, and declared that the Sacramento project could be completed by December 1, 1926, for the actual delivery of the flood waters of the Sacramento during the early months of 1927.

The Sacramento unit could be made an essential link in the Mokelumne project, according to Wilhelm, who presented a map showing proposed connections with the Mokelumne pipe line. The unit could be connected with any additional expense line without any additional expense.

On cross examination, Wilhelm declared that if the growth of the East Bay cities continued and revenues of the company increased, the installation would not involve an increase in rates.

OPENING STATEMENT.

Following is the opening statement in part, made by Edwin O. Edgerton, president of the East Bay Water Company:

We have filed this application and sought this public hearing for the definite purpose of obtaining authorization to bring water to the east bay communities to assure against a possible serious water shortage.

Our investigations have disclosed a project on the Sacramento river which fits into all of the needs of the situation both for domestic and industrial use and may be brought in at comparatively low cost and in the shortest time. Fortunately this project can be fitted into a Mokelumne or any other northern water supply with practically no loss of investment. In other words, what we here propose will adequately care for the communities, safeguard them completely against threatened water shortage, and give adequate time for the completion of a system to bring in a more distant water.

CONSTRUCTIVE STEP.

Rightly viewed therefore, what we propose is not in conflict with a Mokelumne water supply but is a helpful constructive step in the public interest.

We suggest that this whole matter be considered by the Commission solely from the standpoint of what is in the public interest and in our presentation of evidence and witnesses we shall at all times submit our proposal to that test.

East Bay Water Company has for years, as will be shown here in evidence, urged upon public attention the necessity for additional water. Last year it commenced the construction of its last local water development. This company has since its creation taken every forward step necessary to give service.

This water company still has the obligation of service. We seek here such authorization as will enable us to fulfill that obligation.

Should the company for any reason beyond its control be prevented from equipping itself with an adequate water supply this obligation will be lifted from its shoulders and be assumed by others.

Famous Boy Star At The California

JACKIE COOGAN in LITTLE ROBINSON CRUSOE

After witnessing "Little Robinson Crusoe," Jackie Coogan's latest Metro-Goldwyn picture, which opened at the California theatre last night the wonder arises why this film wasn't made sooner! It is so obvious that Jackie should appear in a juvenile version of the famous Robinson Crusoe story—the famous boy star in the immortal tale of a desert isle.

Only this isle, as pictured by William Mack, who wrote the story, is far from uninhabited; it is filled with comical, and right there is the material that makes this feature one of the most humorous and entertaining films of the year. Jackie's adventures realize to the full every dream of boyhood days; it is, for once, not too much to say that the picture is a "knock-out."

Perhaps the only criticism we can make of this production, which is supervised by Jack Coogan, Sr., is that it is too short. We could stand a great deal more of the comedy and adventurous stuff which are woven so skillfully into this story.

Other features on the same program include Will Rogers in his latest comedy "Hustlin' Hank"; International News; Larry Canelo at the organ.

PON HONOR TO OPEN BRANCH STORE TODAY

The Pon Honor chain grocery store will open its doors here today at 721 Macdonald avenue. The Pon Honor which is a self-service grocery, was started in Oakland a few years ago. The idea received such public patronage that it grew rapidly to its present proportions.

George E. Archambault, secretary-treasurer of the chain stores, while speaking of the reasons why Pon Honor decided to come to Richmond said:

"We selected Richmond as a site for one of our four branches because we believe in the future of Richmond and we're willing to invest our money here, not to grow with you but to help you grow, thereby becoming part and parcel of you."

"Some people imagine that when a large chain store locates in a town, that it comes to milk the community. Such is not the case with us. Experience has shown us that we spend $5 for every dollar in profit taken out. Our net profit being small, the volume of our business must be great, and to get volume we do several things that build rather than destroy."

"Our large volume enables us to sell at a very low figure, thereby saving the housewife money, which she in turn spends with other merchants or saves for a rainy day. To get volume, we select the very best location we can find thereby spending more money than the average grocer can think of affording. This in turn raises the value of the property, for property is worth just what the owner can realize from it. By raising the value of the property we occupy, the value of surrounding property is raised also."

"We have noticed that in moving to a community we generally plant the seed for a new business center, and we see no reason for changing our views in this respect in Richmond."

"Ours is a different kind of a chain store. 'Quality food stores' is no idle boast with us. We do not sell cheap goods cheap, but we sell high grade foods at reasonable prices."

"Our manager will reside in Richmond, thereby adding a new family to the community, and he will also affiliate with the local church and lodges to which he has belonged elsewhere, just as much or as little as he is allowed to. We always join the Chamber of Commerce and help any organization or association that has to do with the upbuilding of the community."

"We are here to share and will certainly do our share toward the upbuilding and betterment of Richmond."

CUT IN FERRY FEES EXPLAINED

Additional details of the ruling of the State Railroad Commission cutting rates of two automobile ferries operating in San Francisco bay, announced on Wednesday, were made available yesterday in the formal statement issued by the board.

The decision admits that the automobile ferry business is considered "unusually hazardous" and on that ground fixed 11 per cent as a legitimate return on the money invested. The commission, however, declined to allow the contention of the ferry companies that they are entitled to a return of 15 per cent under a section of the code governing bridge companies connecting highways across certain sections of the bay.

The announcement gives a clean bill to the Monticello Steamship company's service to Vallejo and the Richmond-San Rafael line.

Firemen—"Cops"

the star catcher on the Jackson, Mississippi team. Besides this man, they have listed as real ball tossers: Addison, Hathaway, Merriman, Marvin and Huzefka. Like the police the rest of the team are high-class amateurs.

Capt. Grady states that Sergeant Paul Jones and all the rest of the Richmond Sleuths and burglar chasers will be the easiest to beat, that he has seen in years.

It seems that about the year 1812 when the United States was engaged in a little argument similar to the Police-Firemen game, one Paul Jones was heard to remark, "We have met the enemy and they are ours."

History repeats itself, so they say. In the year 1925, one Paul Jones is heard to remark, "We have met the firemen and seen them in action and they are ours."

With tears in their eyes certain of the firemen went before "Ladyfinger" Pressler yesterday and requested that he offer his valuable service to the ball team. But to no avail. After slapping his wrist once or twice, he declared that his time was all taken up with the study of botany and other sciences.

TEX BROWN'S TEAM

To the great consternation of both managers and players on all interested teams "Tex" Brown has returned from the east. And to the great surprise of everyone he brought with him the famous pitcher, Coombs late of the St. Louis Cardinals. Tex refused to divulge the reason he is not still with the Cards, but he emphatically declared that his presence is in top form and ready to do his utmost to uphold the honor of the Penny Chasers.

Brown was in conference with the president of the Key System Transit company most of the day yesterday, and upon his return to Richmond, he stated that he was very successful in enlisting the aid of said president in offering a loan of gloves, bats, etc., needed for practice, but he was sorry they would not be needed. He reiterated by making a standing offer of free transportation after the Key-Firemen game, date of which has been set for Friday afternoon, April 24.

Brown's probable lineup is:

Scott, ss; Neylon, 2b; Greenway, 3b; Darnell, lf; Hoagland, cf; Brown, rf; Johnson, c; and last but not from least, Coombs, p.
